

Enterprise Estonia invites Estonian companies in timber and other (bio-based) materials to a Dutch target market seminar

The Netherlands is facing a major challenge in building 1.000.000 new homes in the next ten years. Although many of these are to be prefabricated as turn-key deliverables, a substantial share will be built on site applying an increasing share of natural materials such as timber but also other biobased and related building materials. On 18 June you are welcome to meet with experts from the Dutch market focusing on parts and components such as cladding, decking, doors and windows made from (processed) timber and other (bio-based) materials. We will give an overview of the Dutch market and talk about the directions and opportunities there.
